

Bible, Faith and Life – Explored

As Christians we believe God gave us the Bible to act as a lamp to our feet and a light to our path, inspiring, guiding and challenging our understanding, revealing what really matters in the journey of life.

As Christians called Methodists we also believe that God gave us freedom to think and work out life and faith in each new generation. We have not only scripture, but our own reason and experience – all of which we can reflect upon as we seek to make sense of the modern world. The great tradition of Methodism is that we should gather in groups to work this out together.

So we meet regularly to read the Bible – which can be confusing – and to talk about life. You don't need to be clever to do this, or have lots of previous experience, or even need to know the Bible very well. We just come as we are!

If you would like to join our regular Bible Exploration Group you would be most welcome. Please contact Rev Alan Combes for details of when we meet.
